

This proof of concept demonstrates the functionality of the PDF Translation Service by allowing users to input a unique document identifier to retrieve an original PDF from a mock API. Users can then select a preferred language for translation, which will trigger the translation process, and finally display the translated PDF.